

Novonosis Plant Biosolutions seeks an experienced Regulatory Affairs professional to join our US team with primary responsibility in the biopesticide area that includes microorganisms, enzymes, and other novel microbial-derived technologies. Novonosis | The time for biosolutions is now

- Responsible for providing regulatory guidance throughout the product life cycle from early assessment through post launch activities.
- Responsible for aligning within global regulatory and across global functions on data requirements to author and ensure high quality dossiers.
- Develop and implement strategies for product submissions, prepare regulatory pre-submission documents and lead submission meetings.
- Minimum BS (MS preferred) in the Life Sciences (Microbiology, Molecular Biology, Biochemistry) with a minimum of 6+ years of relevant regulatory and registration work experience
- Current experience working within Regulatory Authorities such as US EPA, FIFRA, USDA, FDA, US state ag departments, and related Trade Associations and other industry groups.
- The position is ideally located in the greater Raleigh, NC area; however, other locations will be considered as long as ability to travel to the Raleigh, NC area once per quarter.

Please email MYMR@novonosis.com for more information.